

Young Author's Prize

Each year for the past three years ANTIKOR, the International Scientific and Educational Corrosion Centre in Moscow, which is represented by Dr. Alexandr Muradov, has kindly sponsored a prize for the best oral presentation by a young author in the Oil and Gas session at EUROCORR. At EUROCORR 2005 in Lisbon, the prize was awarded to Delphine Zuili of Technip, Paris for an excellent presentation about failures of AISI 316L austenitic stainless steel due to sulphide stress cracking. The data she presented were of great value in connection with ISO 15156: Materials for use in H₂S-containing environments in oil and gas production. The prize was presented by Dr. Muradov who offered his warmest congratulations to the winner.

Dr. Muradov and his interpreter (left) making a short speech before presenting the prize to the winner, Delphine Zuili (right)

Dr. Muradov and his interpreter (left) with Delphine Zuili, the Prize Winner, and Stein Olsen, WP13 Chairman (right)